PARTICULARS OF THE LOSS OF THE AJAX.

Extract of a letter from an officer, dated at sea, April 17.

"On the evening of the 14th February with the squadron on the entrance of the Dardanelles, the alarm was given that the ship was on fire abaft, and so rapid was its progress, that in about twenty minutes the flames rushed up the after hatchway. Even the few on board despaired of getting the fire under; but the moment it came up the main hatchway and took hold of the rigging, the consternation was general, and every person then seemed inclined to provide for his safety. I followed the captain and master to the fore-castle, and enquired from the latter, whether he had seen any of the young gentlemen? Being answered in the negative, I went immediately in quest of them. One of them I found, and we went immediately out the bowprit to the spritsail yard, where capt. Blackwood and some of the officers then were. The captain then plunged into the waves with one of the lieutenants, and was afterwards picked up by a boat from the Canopus, but the lieutenant went to the bottom. Your friend and I were then left to contemplate our awful and perilous situation and that of our unfortunate shipmates. The flames by this time had reached the main and fore tops, and were rapidly approaching us in the spritsail yard. We looked often around us minutely examining every quarter not already in a blaze, thinking we might perhaps discover some friend in greater distress than ourselves, to whom we might afford relief; but alas poor Mr. Clerk & Mr. Manners could not be seen: they, as I afterwards learned, upon the first appearance of the flames, jumped overboard before the boats were near the ship, and were seen no more. The captain had left the ship, about ten minutes, when a boat from the Windsor Castle showed under the bows, into which I immediately lowered down our friend & another young gentleman, and followed them myself. Even on our passage between the Ajax and Canopus, the nearest ship, we were in imminent danger of losing our lives. The guns, being loaded, were discharging the shot about our ears. There were lost, 3 commissioned officers, 3 warrant, and 13 petty, and not less than 250 of the ship's company."

The proceedings of a board of enquiry, held on board his majesty's ship Canopus, by order of vice-admiral sir John Thomas Duckworth, K. B. and a court martial, held on board his majesty's ship Royal Sovereign, per order of the right honorable lord Collingwood.

At a court martial held on board his majesty's ship Canopus, by order of vice-admiral sir John Thomas Duckworth, K. B. dated 16th February, 1807, and directed to rear-admiral sir Thomas Louis, bart. for enquiring into the cause, and strictly investigating into the circumstances of the fire by which his majesty's ship Ajax was entirely consumed on the night of the 14th inst.

PRESENT.

Rear-admiral Thomas Louis, bart. president.
Rear-admiral sir William Sidney Smith.
Captain Charles Boyles.
Hon. capt. A. K. Legge.
Capt. Richard Dacres.

Read the order of the vice-admiral sir John Thomas Duckworth for the enquiry.

The hon. capt. Blackwood, of his majesty's ship Ajax, appeared before the court, and addressed them as follows:

"I beg leave to state to the court, that from an earnest desire to have the fullest and earliest possible information of the cause of the loss of his majesty's late ship Ajax, under my command, as well as the means used to save her, and that evidence should be heard on oath, and as conclusive a sentence given as possible, so that in the event (which I trust would be the case) of myself, officers and crew, being acquitted, I might again be placed in active service, from which at present we are necessarily withdrawn, I have earnestly solicited vice-admiral sir John Thomas Duckworth, K. B. to order a court-martial; and finding from the right hon. lord Collingwood's orders to him, that he is not authorised to direct a court-martial to be held on the officers and crews of ships lost, but to send them to join the squadron with the said commander in chief for trial, which I consider so contrary to the custom of the service and the act of parliament, that for the following reasons I consider myself, my officers, and ship's company most severely aggrieved, as it deprives us utterly of the advantage which we should otherwise have derived from the full effect in the clause of the act of parliament 22d of Geo. II. as follows: "And it is hereby further enacted, that from and after the 23th day of December, 1719, in case any commander in chief of any fleet or squadron of his majesty's ships or vessels of war in foreign parts shall detach any such fleet or squadron, every commander in chief shall, by writing under his hand, to empower the chief commander of the squadron or detachment so ordered on separate service, and in case of his death or removal, the officer to whom the command of such separate squadron or detachment shall belong, to hold court martial during the time of such separate service, or until the commander of said squadron or detachment for the time being shall come under the command of any of his superior officers, or return to Great Britain or Ireland."

1st. Because it is an open and direct violation of the foregoing act of parliament.

2d. Because from the service the commander in chief is upon, watching an enemy's squadron, it is probable he may not be found off Cadiz; consequently the service is much protracted, and myself, officers and ship's company thrown out of it for an indefinite period.

3dly. Because the commander of the squadron, vice-admiral sir John Thomas Duckworth, has the fullest means by a sufficiency of ships, to comply with the act of Parliament, departing from which becomes a most cruel hardship to individuals, and extremely injurious to the service.

4thly. That, were it not for the sense that vice-admiral sir John Thomas Duckworth has of the peculiarity of the case, being kindly pleased to adopt a middle course, by ordering a court to enquire into the cause of the loss of his majesty's ship Ajax, it would be impossible for us to volunteer our services on the expedition before us, which I now do for myself and officers, hoping that the service at large from the enquiry that has taken place this day, before five such highly distinguished and respectable members, will in the event of our falling in battle, consider the opinion given as conclusive, that not only the fire was such as it was scarcely possible to guard against, but also that it was more rapid than any ever witnessed, and that every exertion was used to extinguish it, though without effect.

"At nine o'clock P. M. on the 14th of February, 1807, at anchor off the mouth of the Dardanelles, in company with the squadron, under vice-admiral sir J. T. Duckworth, K. B. Just as I had gone to bed the officer of the watch ran into my cabin, and acquainted me with there was a great alarm of fire in the after part of the ship; I immediately ordered the drummer to beat to quarters, which was effected and instantly I came out of my cabin. I directed the signal No. 12 to be made which was made and repeatedly enforced by guns at intervals; I called some of the senior officers of the ship, who went down with me to the after cockpit and the lower deck, from whence the smoke issued, I immediately ordered as much water as possible to be thrown down, and the cock to be turned, which I found had been previously done. When I made the signal No. 12 I ordered a boat with lieutenant Wood, a midshipman, and a boat's crew to go and inform all the ships near us of the unfortunate situation of the Ajax. I had scarcely been three minutes on the lower deck, when I found the impossibility of an officer or man remaining in the cockpit, to endeavour to extinguish the fire, perceiving from the quantity and thickness of the smoke, that several men fell down with buckets in their hands from suffocation.

"To obviate this, I desired the lower deck ports to be hoisted up to give air, but very soon finding the harm it produced I directed them to be lowered down and the after hatchway to be covered up, in order to gain time by stopping the vent of the smoke, for the boats to be hoisted out, which measure I was induced to adopt, finding that the fire was of that nature that the ship must soon be in flames. Owing to there not being any cock leading to the after magazine, I ordered the carpenter with his crew to scuttle the after part of the ship; but by this time (a period from the commencement of not more than ten minutes, as near as I can judge) the smoke then endeavored to be stifled, had gained so much, that though it was bright moonlight, we could only distinguish each other, even on deck, by speaking or feeling, consequently all attempts to hoist the boats out were ineffectual except in the case of the jolly boat which began to take up the men who had jumped overboard. Immediately as the flames burst up the main hatchway, which divided the fore from the after part of the ship, I called to every body to get to the foremost part of the ship, as all hopes were at an end of saving her; I desired every one to save himself as fast as he could. I had scarcely reached the fore-castle, when I saw all parts from the centre of the booms off in a raging flame. When the fire had reached the other part of the fore-castle, after exhorting the officers and ship's company to the amount of four hundred men, who were on the fore-castle and about the bowprit, to be cool and depend on the boat; and also seeing that all hopes of saving the ship were vain, I jumped overboard from the spritsail yard, and being about half an hour in the water, I was picked up by one of the boats of the Canopus, and taken on board that ship much exhausted.

"In the execution of the duty which devolved on me as captain of the ship in such a situation I derived much assistance from all the officers, but particularly from lieutenants Procter, Brown, Mitchell, and Sibthorp, as also the master and captain of Marines; and with respect to the ship's company, under such circumstances of fire most rapid I believe than was ever known before, with hammocks below under the impression of terror, which fire at any time creates, but particularly when men were just out of their beds, no people could have behaved with more coolness or perseverance than they did.

"In pursuance of the standing orders, I had received the report from the first lieutenant of his having visited all parts of the ship, with the warrant officer and master at arms, which he had found clear and safe; I had also received the particular report of the master at arms, but not that of the lieutenant of the marine guard, who was accustomed to visit all below, and report to me at nine o'clock, at which hour this unfortunate event took place."

Captain Blackwood's narrative here closed, and several evidences being called in, to court were examined, the court having deliberated on the same, formed their opinion accordingly, which was, unanimously acquitting captain B. his officers and crew.

A similar honorable acquittal was pronounced by the members of a court martial held off Cadiz by order of lord Collingwood.

From the RICHMOND ENQUIRER.

COL. AARON BURR.

Circuit Court of the United States for the fifth Circuit and District of Virginia.

Present JOHN MARSHALL, chief Justice of the United States, And CYRUS GRIFFIN, judge of the district of Virginia.

Continuation of the Debate on the motion for a subpoena Duces Tecum.

WEDNESDAY, June 10.

Mr. M'Lean. I will attempt to satisfy the court that the counsel have not grounded their motion upon this affidavit: (Here Mr. M'Lean read the affidavit)—"May be material to his defence." Now, sir, how is this? I had always understood before that all applications of this kind must be founded upon positive testimony, that the party was not at liberty to state vague and loose conjectures; but that he must give undoubted assertions; and what was still further, that he should swear that these documents were material to his defence. The oath is not, that they may possibly be of use; that they may or may not be material—on this subject it is not merely sufficient to advance some precarious conjectures; but the party must explicitly state his belief, not that they may be, but that they are material. Nay, still further, in criminal cases the party is not merely required by the court to say that they are material, but in what respect they are so. In these points, then, this affidavit is essentially defective. It certainly does not state how these documents are material; it does not even assert that they are material; but only advances a conjecture that they may be so.

I believe, sir, on the authority of a decision of the court of the United States, in the case of Cooper of Northumberland (p. 13 of the report of the trial) it may be shown that the present party has no authority to demand these papers.

And, sir, the case of Cooper was materially distinguished from the one before the court, in this important feature, that the public officers were in the very city and on the very spot, where the trial was conducted. The seat of government was then at Philadelphia and not at Washington. This case, sir, was well known to every individual who was interested in the politics of those times. It is sufficient merely to repeat, that Cooper was sued for a libel; that he put in two pleas; 1st, not guilty; 2d, justification; and that in order to support his plea of justification, he applied to the court for a subpoena on the president of the U. S. to obtain certain public documents; And what did the judge decide?

But, sir, strong as that declaration is in our favor, and though it completely goes to deprive the prisoner of the privilege which he claims; and tho' it is to be considered as law in the courts of the U. S. yet, sir, abhorring any thing that looks like persecution, we should have disdained to shelter ourselves under this abominable precedent. We desire that the prisoner may possess all the information which is necessary to his defence. It is my sincere wish, in this as well as in every other point, to give him all the assistance which evidence can afford. From our souls, do we abhor every, the slightest thing which wears the appearance of persecution; sir I have only read this authority to show, that we might easily have refused this demand, under one of the precedents established by a court of the U. S.

Mr. Martin has said, that no secrets ought to be withheld from a court of justice, except those which have been confidentially entrusted to legal counsel; that this is the only exception to the general doctrine of evidence; and that in all other cases, the witness may be compelled to give information. The exception recognized by Mr. Martin, certainly does exist; but Mr. M. has taken ground too narrow, nor is that the only case where the witness is permitted to keep his information to himself. Sir, if a confidential communication has been made to Thomas Jefferson, he is not responsible to a court of justice for its contents. I speak, sir, with due submission to the court; but I ground my opinion principally on a decision of the supreme court of the U. S. My position is, that if a communication is confidentially made to Thomas Jefferson, he is not bound to appear before this or any other court, to disclose it. It is unnecessary to collect arguments to demonstrate the soundness of the policy on which this principle is constructed. That would be an easy task. But, sir, instead of wasting my time and the time of the court upon the policy of the measure, I will refer you at once to a precedent. In the case of Marbury vs. Madison in the supreme court of the U. S. Mr. Lincoln, the attorney general of the U. S. was called into court, and it was vehemently contended that he might be compelled to give information, like another citizen. Mr. Lincoln stated his objections in the following terms:

In the same book p. 166, the case of the secretary of state is also stated:

It follows from the foregoing, that the court should always receive special information about the papers, which a party wishes to obtain, before they authorize him to demand them: They ought to ascertain whether these papers contain confidential communications to the head of the government. But, sir, if the papers which are called for by the affidavit of A. Burr be of a public nature; why should the court issue a subpoena duces tecum to demand them? The opposite counsel may rest assured, and the attorney for the United States has actually pledged himself solemnly to this court, that he would spare no exertions to obtain a copy of them, if the copy would be sufficient, or the originals if copies will not avail. But, sir, if this letter be of a confidential nature, it is not the duty of the president of the United States to produce it in this court nor any where else.

And where is the propriety of directing this subpoena in any event, to the president? If it be a public letter, it is undoubtedly deposited with every other paper of the same complexion in the archives of state: Why then, is not this subpoena addressed to the secretary of state, instead of the president of the United States? There is no specific reason why this informality is adopted; for gentlemen do not even pretend that they want the president's personal papers. All that they pretend to require are certain papers in his possession; and these are evidently to be obtained, without the necessity of dragging him from Washington to this city. But, sir, if these papers are not of a public nature; if they should prove to be confidential communications addressed to the president of the U. S. then by the reasoning which I have here before employed, it is not necessary and is not proper to subpoena Thomas Jefferson.

One remark more, and gentlemen insist upon producing in this court the original Wilkinson to the U. S. I will suggest an objection to every possible objection, that your honors say, that every man may be read in evidence; all other documents in the government; then also for the U. S. consent to be read and have the original. But gentlemen that general Wilkinson this copy, sir, general have no right to argue, and much less, when he that this very copy is evidence to the court on the same validity as the original. But, sir, if general Wilkinson to raise this objection, to declare that this or that it was not an exact copy; a few days when the original would be produced.

Mr. M'Lean concludes his sincere wish, that money necessary to the should be produced; but his hopes that no such time recommended by act would be sanctioned.

One remark more, and I have done! The gentlemen insist upon the necessity of producing in this court the original letter from General Wilkinson to the president of the U. S. I will suggest an expedient, which may obviate every possible inconvenience.
Your honors say, that a copy of this letter may be read in evidence like copies of other documents in the departments of government; then also will the attorney for the U. S. consent that this copy may be read and have the very same effect as the original. But gentlemen may contend that general Wilkinson would object to this copy; sir, general Wilkinson would have no right to urge such an objection; and much less, when he should understand that this very copy is expressly introduced into the court on the principle of possessing the same validity as the original itself.
But, sir, if general Wilkinson should dare to raise this objection; if he should pretend to declare that this was not his letter, or that it was not an authentic and correct copy; a few days only would elapse when the original would certainly be produced.

Mr. M' Rae concluded with repeating his sincere wish, that every proper testimony necessary to the prisoner's defence should be produced; but with expressing his hopes that no such step as was at that time recommended by the opposite counsel would be sanctioned by the court.

NEW YORK, June 28.

Arrived, brig Triton, Arnold, Cotte, 66 days. On the outward passage, the 20th December last, in the Straights of Gibratar, was brought too by a Spanish gun boat, the captain of which on coming on board, immediately enquired for the captain, and without any further questions drew his cutlass and broke it on captain A's shoulders. He then went below and examined the brig's papers, and told him he should send him into Tariffa—as such he left one man on board, and returned, with his interpreter on board, the corsair and sent three ruffians armed with cutlasses, who took charge of the brig and stood in for Tariffa. After boarding several vessels in sight, he sent his boat again on board, and ordered captain A to proceed. Spoke, May 3, in lat. 36, 14, amining the papers impressed John Wad-sen, having a Swedish protection.

NORFOLK, June 27.

Yesterday morning there arrived here the crew of the schr. Margaret, K. Bailey, captain Ferguson, captured on the 19th instant by the Leopard, British frigate, about 10 miles to the eastward of Chicksa-teague, in 14 fathoms water, and after having a Delaware pilot on board upwards of 8 hours. She was from Havana; with a valuable cargo of coffee and sugar, the property of Lewis Clapier, of Philadelphia. The frigate took out the crew, except the captain, and sent her to Halifax, not allowing them time to take their clothes or any other article from on board the schooner.

During the time they were on board the Leopard they were treated with much rudi-ness; their protections taken from them and torn; and on the morning of the 23d, when preparing to get under way to attack the Chesapeake, were put on board the Triumph, where they met with very different treatment—and they were next day put on board the schooner Maria, Clarke, from Antigua bound to Port River.

The following letters have passed between the committee and the British consul which are published for the information of the public.

THEO. ARMISTEAD,
Sec'y of the Committee.

British Consul's Office, Norfolk.
Virginia, June 25, 1807.

To brigadier general Mathews, chairman of the committee appointed to carry into effect the resolutions, &c.

Sir,
AS I do not perfectly understand how far the construction of the resolutions adopted at the meeting held yesterday, as they respect the communication between myself and his majesty's ships in the Chesapeake, may be supposed to extend, I beg leave to enquire of you sir, as the chairman appointed to carry these resolutions into effect, whether any or what restraint is thereby intended to be laid on my communication with the king's ships—where-ther the schooners which have hitherto been used as advice boats, will be permitted to pass as heretofore, uninterruptedly and whether there will be any objection to myself, or any of my family, going backwards or forwards to the ships of war below, in such boats as may be allowed to carry my correspondence, or to our going by land to the bay side, and debarking from thence and returning to the shore in the ship's boats.

I have the honor to remain,
With perfect respect,
Your most obedt. humble servant,
JOHN HAMILTON.

To col. John Hamilton, consul for the state of Virginia.

Sir,
IN answer to your letter of this date I am directed by the committee to say, that the schooners hitherto employed as advice boats in the service of his H. B. majesty's ships, cannot be permitted to pass or repass as heretofore. The Committee view the object of the resolutions as intending to prevent supplies of every kind being afforded to these ships until the pleasure of our government be known. The committee can see no obstacle to you or any of your family communicating with the officers of H. B. majesty's ships in either of the modes you mention, confident that no attempt will be made to contravene the resolutions restricting supplies. The boats you may engage in this service will be permitted to pass without examination.

I have the honor to be,
With perfect respect,
Your most obedient servant,
THO. MATHEWS,
Chairman of the Committee.

Norfolk June 26, 1807.

Extract of a letter from Hampton, dated 26th June.

"We have late news from the British men of war by the pilots that were discharged yesterday. They declare, that if their water and provisions do not come to them as usual, they will lay three ships of war along side Hampton—send their barges ashore, and take them by force! The Hamptonians are casting balls and making cartridges, to bid them welcome."

The following letter to the committee of correspondence has been received from Geo.
Hope, esquire, of Hampton, dated 26th instant.

SIRS,
I just now received yours with the enclosed resolutions of the citizens of Norfolk, and immediately communicated them to colonel Wray, and posted, to make them as public as possible. The inhabitants of this place unanimously feel indignant at the outrage committed on the Chesapeake, and are concerting measures to prevent the landing of any boats from the ships, which it is probable they may attempt.

I am, with respect,
GEORGE HOPE."

At a meeting of the committee at the Eagle tavern, on Friday, June 26, 1807.

Present—Thomas Mathews, Daniel Bedinger, J. W. Murdaugh, Luke Wheeler, William Newsum, Thomas Newton, Tho's Blanchard, Theo. Armistead, M. Myers.

Resolved unanimously, as the opinion of this committee, that the British officer who his day brought dispatches to colonel Hamliton, not having hoisted a flag before his approach to our harbor, was not afterwards entitled to be considered as coming under the protection of a flag of truce; and as such, he should not have been discharged, but should have been held in custody until the pleasure of the government was known.

Resolved unanimously, that it is the opinion of this committee, that any British officer coming to this place, shall be considered as a prisoner, until the decision of the government be known.

Resolved unanimously, that the proceedings of this meeting be regularly published.

The committee of correspondence laid before the committee a letter from Mr.
Hope, of Hampton, which was ordered to be published.

Resolved, that Theodorick Armistead & Thomas Newton, jun. be a committee to ascertain the best means of establishing a telegraphic communication between the sea shore and this place.

Mr. James W. Murdaugh having informed the committee that a number of young gentlemen had instructed him to offer their services in the erection of batteries for the defence of the towns of Norfolk and Portsmouth.

Resolved, That Mr. Murdaugh be requested to return them the thanks of this committee for their patriotic offer, and trusts that the time is not distant when an opportunity will be offered for the display of their zeal.

THOS. MATHEWS, Chairman.

which is lodged in the Collector's Office, was will not look at them; and moreover were all born and brought up in the U. States

THURSDAY, JULY 2.

MARRIED, on Monday evening last, by the Rev. Mr. Shay, Mr. JOHN LAWRENCE, to Mrs. CATHERINE JANUARY—both of this place.

The Secretary of War was expected to arrive in this city last night, and the Secretary of the Treasury is expected to-day. After their arrival, a full consultation will, no doubt, be had with regard to the measures called for by the crisis, the delay in taking which has probably arisen from their absence.

National Intelligencer.

We understand that immediately on receiving information of the issue of the outrage offered to the Chesapeake, the Secretary of the Navy ordered Capt. Decatur to take the command of her, and prepare her without delay for service; and likewise ordered an enquiry to be instituted into the conduct of Commodore James Barron on the occasion. The Court of Inquiry is composed of Commodore Preble, and Captains Hull and Chauncey, and is to convene on board the Chesapeake.

The following is a copy of the letter addressed by the officers of the wardroom of the Chesapeake, to the secretary of the navy.

Late U. S. ship Chesapeake, Hampton Roads, June 23, 1807.

SIR,

The undersigned, officers of the late U. S. ship Chesapeake, feeling deeply sensible of the disgrace which must be attached to the late (in their opinion) premature surrender of the U.
States ship Chesapeake of 40 guns, to the English ship of war Leopard of 50 guns, without their previous knowledge, or consent, and desirous of proving to their country and the world, that it was the wish of all the undersigned, to have rendered themselves worthy of the flag under which they had the honor to serve, by a determined resistance, to an unjust demand, do request the honorable the secretary of the navy to order a court of enquiry into their conduct. At the same time they are compelled by imperious duty, by the honor of their flag, by the honor of their countrymen and by all that is dear to themselves, to request that an order may be issued for the arrest of commodore James Barron on the charges herewith exhibited which the undersigned pledge themselves to prove true, viz.

1st. On the probability of an engagement, for neglecting to clear his ship for action.

2dly. For not doing his utmost to take or destroy a vessel which we conceive it his duty to have done.

With the highest respect,
We subscribe ourselves,
Your most obedient servants.

Philadelphia, 27th June.

SINGULAR.—In a letter from the island of Jersey, contained in a late London paper, the following singular circumstance is related.

We have here witnessed a most distressing scene, which has excited sensations that no language can describe. Some soldiers belonging to the 14th regiment, having committed some depredations here, were brought to trial and two of them condemned to suffer death.
Only one of them, however, was left for execution, named Hales. Saturday last was the day fixed on for his execution. When he had hung about a minute and a half, the executioner taking hold of his convulsed body, suspended himself on it, by whose additional weight the rope gave way in such a manner, that the miserable sufferer's feet touched the ground. The executioner then pulled him sideways in order to strangle him; and being unable to effect it in this way, got upon his shoulders. To the great surprise of all who witnessed this dreadful scene, the poor criminal rose straight upon his feet with the hangman on his shoulders, and immediately loosened the rope from his throat with his fingers. No language can describe the sensations which were excited among the bystanders by this shocking scene. The sheriff ordered another rope to be prepared, but the spectators interfered, and the sheriff, distressed beyond description by the shocking spectacle, agreed that, before proceeding to the execution of the sentence, he would wait till the will of the magistracy should be known. The civil magistrate not being in town, orders were sent by the commander in chief to carry the man back to goal. By the time this order arrived, the poor fellow had recovered his sen-sesc. The interest which the scene excited cannot be described—all became deeply interested in the man's fate. Captain Nicolls and another gentleman took him under the arms to conduct him, and by their assistance he was able to walk back to prison. The court is now sitting to decide the poor man's fate.
May the voice of mercy prevail.

P. S. I open my letter to inform you, that the court has decided, that the whole matter relative to poor Hales shall be transmitted to the king, and the execution of the sentence, in consequence, is suspended till his majesty's pleasure be known. Petitions, I understand, are preparing by the inhabitants, to be forwarded to his majesty; so that we have now every hope, that what the poor man has already suffered, and his apparent contrition, will obtain for him his majesty's most gracious pardon.

Forty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY, on the 5th instant, a small Negro Boy named Tom, about 13 years of age, 4 feet 6 or 7 inches high, of a yellowish complexion, weak and hilly-eyed, and has a few faint scars on his face; his hair cut close excepting a small circular bunch behind, stutters when he attempts to speak fast or is alarmed. Had on an old tow linen shirt, and a pair of old black striped lusey trousers, patched with blue and white kersey. He is an artful chap and will attempt to pass for a free boy, by getting some free negro to own him for a child, which he has frequently said would be his plan should he run away.

TWENTY DOLLARS will be paid for apprehending him, if taken in this state, and the above reward if taken out of the state, secured so that I get him, and all reasonable charges if brought home to Thirty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber in August last, a negro woman named Tabb; she is about 35 years of age, of the common size, of a yellowish complexion, long face, high cheek bones, and her eyes sunk in—she understands every kind of house work, washing, nursing, &c. In the latter capacity she has been passing herself in Alexandria, and has said by my authority. There are various circumstances which lead me to believe she has been and is now secreted by her husband Jerry (the property of Joseph Mandeville, junior). He is hired to his father John Mandeville, as a laborer, and sometimes drives a cart on the streets. Twenty Dollars will be paid if taken in the district, and the above reward if taken above 10 miles without, provided that she is so secured that I get her again.

All persons are cautioned against harboring or employing said negro, in any capacity whatsoever.

20 Dollars Reward.

ELOPED from the subscriber living near Richmond court-house, Virginia, on the last of April, a lad by the name of George. He is short, of a dark complexion, and about 18 years of age, had his right thigh broken by a fall from a horse at Hanover court house, when living with John Taylos, Esq. Mount Airy; it has occasioned a small lameness. He took with him a variety of clothes, particularly a pair of buckskin pantaloons, almost new. The above reward will be given, for apprehending and confining him in any jail in this state. Should he be apprehended out of the state, an additional reward will be given by

Landon Carter.

Patent Elastic Suspenders,
To be had, wholesale and retail, of the Patentee, next door below Mr. Alexander M'Kenzie's, lower end of Prince-street, Alexandria.

THEY surpass any yet extant, for ease, elegance, &c. Masters of vessels and other gentlemen going to the West-Indies, Spanish Main, &c. may be furnished with an assortment, and a great allowance to those who purchase by the quantity.

N. B. The buttons on the back parts of the waistband ought to be placed the same distance from each other, as the two center buttons on the Suspenders, to prevent improper straining, and thereby destroying the ease designed in the construction of the article.

Suwarrow Boots.

JOHN G. FRANCIS,

From New-York,

RESPECTFULLY informs the public that he manufactures Suwarrow Boots with all the modern improvements, warranted equal to any in the United States. After many years of experience in his business, he has discovered a new method of retaining the elasticity in boots. He warrants to fit the leg to it over so badly shaped. He makes boots of various descriptions, viz. Suwarrows—Fair Tops, Three Quarters, Corsican Spring Toes, Duck Bills, Round Toes, Bobapara's Graves, Jefferson's Boots and Shoes. He warrants to fit the Suwarrow equal to the tick boots. Gentlemen will please to call and choose for themselves, at his shop in King-street, between Mr. Mott's and Mr. Hodgkin's taverns.
N. B. He intends selling cheap for cash.
